Philosophical Biography

Mrs. DenBleyker believes in Christian education as an opportunity to teach God's truths to her students so they can begin to gain a better understanding of how God is at the center of all we do. Teaching students opens the doors for growth academically as well as spiritually and allows for conversations where God's love can be expressed to the students and their hearts can be molded by him. Working with Christian parents and churches alongside the Christian school weaves a strong bond where the education of the students and relationships with families can grow together.
